3. Please provide the three most significant decisions concerning the interpretation and application of the 1980 Convention rendered since the 2017 SC by the relevant authorities⁴ in your State.

Case Name	Court Name	Court Level	Brief summary of the ruling
UYK v UYJ [2020] 5 SLR 772; [2020] SGHCF 9	Supreme Court of Singapore	High Court (Family Division)	Both the father and mother are British citizens who were residing in Singapore. The mother took their 5-year old child from Singapore to UK without the father’s knowledge or consent. Father commenced proceedings in UK and obtained an order for the child to be returned to Singapore (“UK Court Order”). The mother filed an application for care and control of the child and for the child to be relocated from Singapore to UK (the “Mother’s Application”). The lower Court granted the Mother’s Application.

			The father appealed and relied on the UK Court Order to resist the Mother’s Application (the “Appeal”). Ruling: The Singapore High Court dismissed the father’s Appeal and applied Article 16 of the Hague Convention at [49] which made clear that the UK Court could only decide the habitual residence to select the country with the jurisdiction to decide on the child’s custody, care and control. In other words, it was for the Singapore Court to decide which parent should be granted custody, care and control of the child and the UK Court Order had no bearing on the same.
TUC v TUD [2017] 4 SLR 877 (SGHC)	Supreme Court of Singapore	High Court	The father and mother are both naturalised US citizens. The father applied for an order that his 2 children be returned from Singapore to USA, which according to him was the children’s place of habitual residence. The mother disputed this and claimed that the father had consented to the children’s retention in Singapore. The lower Court agreed with the mother. The father filed an appeal. Ruling: The High Court allowed the appeal on 2 grounds namely, that the children were habitually resident in US and the father did not consent to the children’s retention in Singapore. The Court clarified at [74] that “habitual residence” for the purposes of Article 3 of the Hague Convention involves a broad-based inquiry on factors such as “how integrated the child is to the country in terms of the environment, education system, culture, language and people around him/her in that country.” The Court further clarified at [81] that consent under Article 13(a) of the Hague Convention meant “whether, on a balance of probabilities, the left behind parent has unequivocally consented to the removal or retention of the child.”
BDU v BDT [2014] SGCA 12	Supreme Court of Singapore	High Court	(published on INCADAT)
